

HAND SIGNALS

Just like motorists, bicyclists are also responsible for communicating with other road users. Let others know what direction you are turning or if you are stopping. Hand signals are a bikers equivalent of blinkers and backup lights! Follow road rules and be predictable!

VIEW FROM THE BACK

Left turn hand signal

or

Right turn hand signal

Stop hand signal

Funding for this program is provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration

HAND SIGNALS

Just like motorists, bicyclists are also responsible for communicating with other road users. Below you will see how you can let others know in what direction you are turning or if you are stopping, while riding your bicycle. Hand signals are your equivalent of blinkers and backup lights!

VIEW FROM THE BACK

Left turn hand signal

or

Right turn hand signal

Stop hand signal

Funding for this program is provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration